

We are happy to invite you to our Side Event at COP23

Time for a diet shift:
Plant based diet for climate change mitigation

Livestock products are a major cause for environmental destruction, whereas a plant based diet has a much smaller impact, a great potential for lowering GHG emissions, and many co-benefits (environmental, health, social, ethical and more). However, this topic is hardly spoken or presented as a key policy tool for climate change mitigation.

What can be done to promote it, then?

Our panel include representatives of leading NGOs who focus on this topic who will share insights from their action in their countries on both public and policy levels.

Join Us!

Wednesday, Nov.15th, 15.15-16.45
at the Indigenous People Pavilion